INTRODUCTORY.

The compilation of the military history of each soldier of the Civil War (who was a resident of the State of Michigan at the time he enlisted), for publication and distribution has been the subject of controversy for years. The magnitude of such a work, together with the cost of publication, the exhaustive research required and the amount of clerical services necessary in its compilation, have been large factors in postponing, from time to time, the consideration of the subject.

To comply as far as possible with this demand an admirable history was prepared by Adjutant General John Robertson, a few years ago, entitled "Michigan in the War," and gratuitously distributed through the generosity of the state to the surviving soldiers of the war and to the families of those who perished. But this work was general in character, referring mostly to regimental organizations, and contained the military biography of commissioned officers only.

The enlisted men of the army who endured the hardships and suffered the perils of war considered it due themselves and their children that their names should appear of record in the archives of their country and their services noted, that future generations might know the honorable part their ancestors bore in the memorable conflict known as the Civil War. Such a record will ever be a source of patriotic pride to the soldier who did his duty whether he served in the ranks or in command of divisions or corps, and an inspiration to the youth of the country who must in the future assume the civic and military responsibilities of this grand republic.

At the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Michigan, held at Pontiac, June 11 and 12, 1902, the following resolution was passed unanimously:

"Resolved: That the Department of Michigan, Grand Army of the Republic, in encampment assembled, hereby request of the legislature and the Governor of Michigan that immediate provision be made for the publication of the record of the officers and enlisted men who served from this state during the Civil War in form substantially the same as those published by other states, notably New Hampshire, Connecticut and Ohio."

The Department Commander appointed a committee on legislation consisting of C. E. Foote, Kalamazoo, Col. Fred Schneider, Lansing, and Alfred Milnes, Coldwater. This committee drafted the following bill, which was passed by both houses of the legislature in the session of 1903, and was promptly signed by Governor Bliss.

The act is known as Act 147, Public Acts of 1903.

The first three sections of the Act are as follows, and the concluding sections refer to provisions of contracting for publication and auditing accounts.

The People of the State of Michigan enact:

Section 1. The Adjutant General shall, as soon as practicable after the passage of this act, prepare for publication an alphabetical regimental history of all soldiers and sailors who enlisted from and were credited to this state during the war of the rebellion. Such history shall contain the name, residence, date of enlistment, date of muster in, rank, promotion, wounds received, capture and imprisonment by the enemy, date of discharge, muster out or death, and such information as can be obtained from the records of this state, the war, navy and other departments of the Federal Government, or other authentic sources, as will correct or complete the records, making as far as practicable a complete and concise military history of each soldier or sailor so serving; prefacing each volume of such records appropriately, with a concise general history of the organization therein named. He shall direct the preparation and compilation of such records for publication in forty-three, forty-four, forty-five, or forty-six volumes, assigning as far as practicable one volume to each of the following organizations and groups of organizations, viz.: One volume to each regimental infantry organization and reorganization, numbered from First to Thirtieth regiment; one volume each to First regiment of Michigan Engineers and Mechanics, First regiment Michigan Sharpshooters, and First regiment Michigan colored troops; one volume to the fourteen Michigan Batteries of Light Artillery; one volume to Gen. George A. Custer's Cavalry Brigade, consisting of the First, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh regiments of Michigan cavalry; one volume to each of the Second, Third, Fourth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh Michigan cavalry regiments; and one volume to contain all other miscellaneous organizations and detachments enlisted in this state and serving in Michigan and other state organizations; and one volume to contain a general alphabetical index of all names mentioned in the different volumes constituting the entire edition, showing in what organization or volume each name in the index may be found, for the convenient reference of the public in library sets, which index volume is herewith limited to two hundred copies. For this purpose the Adjutant General is authorized to employ such extra clerical assistance and procure such blanks and stationery as may be necessary in the preparation, compilation, comparing and proof reading, necessary to secure historical and typographical accuracy.

Section 2. The distribution of said volumes when published shall be made under the supervision of the Adjutant General, in the same general manner now adopted for the distribution of "Michigan in the War," under section three, act two hundred forty-eight, public acts of eighteen hundred eighty-seven. One regimental volume to the applicant of the organization in which he served as follows: Any person who served in any Michigan regiment, battery, company or detachment during the Civil War, and has been honorably discharged, or any person who served in any regiment, battery or company from any other state, or in the regular army, or in the navy, properly accredited to the State of Michigan, and has been honorably discharged, or if such person be dead, then his widow if living, or if she be dead, then his father if living, if he be dead, then the mother of any such person, or if she be dead, then to his eldest child, if any there be; and any such person who is still in the service, shall be entitled to receive one copy of said work, on application and identification to the Adjutant General, and if the application for such copy be not made in person by depositing with the Adjutant General necessary postage to cover the expense of sending such book. Also complete sets to adjutants general of other states, and to state and United States public libraries upon application, and to such other libraries in this state as the Governor may approve, and may be purchased by any other persons who may apply at cost of publication.

Section 3. So soon as the work of preparation and compilation of the historical records herein provided for shall have progressed sufficiently near completion to enable printers and binders to make accurate estimates of the cost of publication, the Adjutant General shall serve a written notification of that fact on the Board of State Auditors; upon such notification, at the earliest practicable moment, the Board of State Auditors is hereby directed to solicit sealed bids for the publication, printing and binding of forty-five thousand volumes of "A Record of Michigan Soldiers and Sailors in the War of the Rebellion, Eighteen Hundred Sixty-one to Eighteen Hundred Sixty-Five," and give public notice of the time and place for receiving such bids and the requirements of the contract in accordance with this act by publishing the same in such paper or papers, and for such a period as will in the judgment of the board bring the subject to the attention of the several prominent publishing houses in this state: Provided, That the cost of such work complete shall not exceed fourteen thousand dollars for the printing, binding and delivery of the entire edition herein provided for; and the standard of excellence in quality of material, style of binding, typography and style of printing shall be equal to that used by the state of Massachusetts in its recent publication of "Massachusetts' Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolutionary War," copies of which are now on file in the Adjutant General's office of this state: Provided, further, That the apportionment of the copies of the different regimental volumes of the edition of forty-five thousand volumes herein provided for, shall be in the same relative proportion as the total enrollment of the organizations represented in any single volume bears to the total enrollment of the entire edition as provided for in this act; for which purpose the Adjutant General shall direct the preparation of, and furnish the Board of State Auditors with a comprehensive table of data, showing the total enrollment of the organization, and the total number of printed pages intended for each volume, and the apportionment of the total number of copies to each of such volumes, for the guidance of bidders for the contract of publishing such work.

Immediately upon the approval of the act by the Governor, the Adjutant General commenced active preparations to compile the work as provided for in the bill. No state has been more generous than Michigan in trying to secure full and complete historical military data of her sons, who patriotically volunteered to defend the integrity of their country, and probably the records in the military department are as accurate and complete as any like records of any state in the Union. Yet with all the care and research that has been made, there are individual histories that are deficient in some particulars, owing to the fact that the returns from which they were copied were written in the field during active and protracted campaigns, when great battles were fought, and the movement of troops continued incessantly night and day, circumstances incompatible with accuracy, completeness and legibility, and by officers who succeeded suddenly in command by the death of their predecessors. The greater number who possessed the information desired have been removed by death, and their silent lips can never complete the unwritten history of their comrades.

It was sometimes impossible in the stirring times of war for commanding officers to give authentic and final history of men who disappeared in a great battle, as in many cases the bodies of the dead could not be found, and if possession of the field was yielded to the enemy the fate of those who were made prisoners of war could only, if ever, be learned through unreliable Confederate sources.

For such heroes who died for their country and who sleep in nameless graves their epitaph is inscribed in this history as "Missing in action." A more honorable or heroic epitaph could not be penned. Thousands of the Union dead have been removed by the Government from the field where they fell, and their bodies have been placed in national cemeteries, beautified and adorned, as the mausoleum of the nation's defenders with appropriate monuments at their resting places.

In order to complete some of the records of the Adjutant General's Office, which is the custodian of all the field returns of the Civil War, Governor Bliss made a request of the Secretary of War, seconded by Senators Burrows and Alger, asking that the incomplete, individual records of this office be completed, upon presentation by the Adjutant General, provided the War Department was in possession of the facts desired. For reasons which seemed sufficient to the Secretary of War, the request was denied.

To supplement the records of this office so as to make each individual history complete as far as possible, blanks were prepared and sent to all the Grand Army Posts of the state, with the request that the names of all Michigan soldiers in the Post and vicinity be returned to the Adjutant General stating the residence, if living, and, if dead, the date of death and place of burial.

Three hundred out of the three hundred and sixty Posts of the state responded, and the data gathered from these reports have been added to the official history shown by the records of this office. Without doubt there are some inaccuracies in these reports, but the majority of them are correct and will enable many ex-soldiers to locate their comrades, if living, and to know their resting places if dead.

A request was also made of each superintendent of the eighty national cemeteries to forward to the Adjutant General the names of all Michigan soldiers buried in such cemeteries. A gratifying response was received, and these reports have been carefully compiled and added to the history of the soldier. These reports of the superintendents of national cemeteries tell a mournful story. The superintendent of the National Cemetery at Andersonville, Ga., reports the names of six hundred and forty-seven Michigan soldiers buried there, victims of Andersonville prison. There is scarcely a national cemetery in the United States that does not contain the bodies of Michigan soldiers, and a number of them as many as the cemetery at Andersonville, Ga.

Near the close of the war there were many recruits at depots awaiting transportation to join regiments at the front, but when it was found their services would not be needed, many returned home without the formality of a muster out, and their final disposition was incomplete, and in many such cases shows "no further record."

In the compilation of this work no pains have been spared and no research of the almost numberless field returns made forty years ago, has seemed too arduous to make the soldiers' record absolutely complete if there were material existing to make this possible. That inaccuracies will appear is unavoidable from the nature of the work. The inaccuracies are not the result of careless clerical work in the Adjutant General's office, but are due to the hasty compilation of returns in the field, where names were misspelled and where the name of a soldier is spelled differently in the muster-in and muster-out rolls.

In cases where the name could not be verified as the correct one both are published. When inaccuracies appear in the record if the soldier will send his discharge papers to the Adjutant General, the corrections will be made in the official records of the office and the discharge papers promptly returned. It scarcely occurred to the officers who made their official returns to the different departments that forty years after the conflict, an individual history of each soldier who participated would be written. Had such been known then, the meagre and scant accounts of skirmishes, battles and sieges—many of them destined to be of world-wide fame—would have been extended and written out fully giving a comprehensive history of individuals, companies and regiments, a history that would be a priceless heritage today and to future generations.

The hardships of a campaign, the duties exacted night and day, the constant attention to matters of vital importance, are not conducive to literary efforts of biography or general history. It is pathetic to know that thousands upon thousands of Union soldiers who participated in many of the most desperate battles of the Civil War, have no records of such battles to their credit in the official reports. A limited number were fortunate enough to have their names recorded by their officers as participating in such engagements.

Whenever the official records have mentioned the battles in which the soldier fought, or wounds that he received, or promotions made, or any gallant and meritorious service, such record has been carefully noted and attached to the soldier's history. At the commencement of the work it was found that many soldiers saw service in more than one regiment, and as the appropriation contemplated but one volume to each man, the entire history of the soldier has been compiled under his name and placed in the volume where he served longest. The primary object of the whole work has been to group the comrades who served in the same regiment, with names arranged in alphabetical order, and present him with the volume containing his own military history and the history of those with whom he served.

The soldiers who enlisted for three years and after serving two years re-enlisted in the field for "three years or during the war," have the distinctive and honorable title of "veteran" placed after their names.

Careful enumeration has been made of the total enrollment of each regiment, together with the list of casualties.

The work of compiling these individual histories has been long and arduous, but it has been one of gratification and satisfaction to record the gallant deeds of Michigan men who contributed so gloriously to the unity and perpetuity of the Union.

Twenty-Fifth Infantry.

The Twenty-fifth was organized at Kalamazoo and mustered into service Sept. 22, 1862, with an enrollment of 896 officers and men.

Captain Orlando H. Moore of the Regular Army, who had served as Lieutenant Colonel with the Thirteenth Michigan Infantry, was commissioned Colonel and drilled and disciplined the Twenty-fifth for service in the field.

The field, staff and line officers at organization were as follows:

K. Captain, M. V. McKinney, Buchanan. First Lieutenant, John Tennant, Buchanan. Second Lieutenant, Franklin D. Weaver, Buchanan.

The regiment left Kalamazoo Sept. 29, 1862, for Louisville, Ky., and after its arrival became actively engaged in several expeditions in driving the enemy from the state.

In January, 1863, the Twenty-fifth was employed on provost duty at Bowling Green, Ky., and in April following was performing same duty at Louisville, Ky., as the experience and military education of Colonel Moore made him especially competent to discharge such delicate duties, where firmness had to be tempered with kindness in controlling the citizens, who were largely confederate sympathizers, and holding in check with a strong hand the lawless and turbulent element.

The Twenty-fifth was assigned to the First Brigade, Second Division.

Twenty-third Corps, and continued in the same organization during its term of service.

Colonel Moore, with five companies of his regiment, numbering about 200 men, was ordered June 10th to Green River Bridge, near Columbia, as news had been received that the confederate General John Morgan was about to cross the Cumberland River and march on Louisville. Colonel Moore selected his own ground to meet the enemy, supposed to be 3,000 strong, and disposed his small force to combat ten times his number at Tebbs Bend, and fearlessly awaited the approach of the confederates, knowing that no other Union troops were within 30 miles of his camp. The Colonel selected a strong position with the practical eye of a soldier, the flanks of his camp being protected by the river so the enemy was compelled to meet him in front, and strengthened it by throwing up a line of earth works and felling trees to protect his men against the charge of the enemy's cavalry.

On the morning of July 4, 1863, the forces of General Morgan opened with musketry and artillery upon the little band of Union troops and after Colonel Moore's skirmishers had been driven in a flag of truce approached with a demand from General Morgan for an immediate and unconditional surrender. Colonel Moore met the flag of truce and sent back the following message: "Present my compliments to General Morgan and say to him that, this being the Fourth of July, I cannot entertain the proposition of surrender."

The confederates immediately charged the camp and a desperate conflict raged for four hours, the overwhelming numbers of the enemy surging up so close to the Union lines that they were driven back repeatedly in a hand to hand encounter. General Morgan, seeing the hopelessness of continuing the conflict longer, withdrew his forces after he had met with a loss of as many killed and wounded as Colonel Moore had in his command. Twenty-two of the confederate commissioned officers were killed or wounded, among the killed being Colonel Chenault and Major Brent, while Colonel Moore lost 6 killed and 23 wounded.

Major General Hartsuff, in a general order, complimented Colonel Moore and the officers and men of his command, saying "the entire arrangement of his defense entitles him to the highest credit for military skill."

The obstinate defense made by Colonel Moore and his men delayed General Morgan twelve hours, which completely frustrated his plan of march and undoubtedly saved the city of Louisville from being looted by Morgan's men and the destruction of vast stores for the Union army.

All the companies of the Twenty-fifth were assembled at Lebanon, Ky., and started August 19th for a long and toilsome march for East Tennessee.

Colonel Moore being in command of the Second Brigade, the Twenty-fifth, in command of Captain Demarest, proceeded from Loudon to Kingston and occupied many towns in East Tennessee during the following months, coming in contact with the enemy frequently and enduring all the hardships of a winter campaign without rations, tents, blankets, clothing and shoes, though the weather was bitter cold. There was no campaign of the war when so many hardships were endured for want of supplies of every nature to make a soldier comfortable in the field as the campaign of East Tennessee.

On the 25th of April, 1864, the regiment, in command of Colonel B. O. Orcutt, started upon the Atlanta campaign and participated in the marches, battles and skirmishes of General Sherman's army. It came in contact with the enemy at Tunnell Hill, Rocky Face Ridge, Resaca, Cassville, Kingston, Allatoona, Pine Mountain, Lost Mountain and Kenesaw, and crossed the Chattahoochee July 9th and took an active part in the siege of Atlanta. The Twenty-fifth was in the flanking movement which resulted in the battle of Jonesboro and the fall of Atlanta.

When General Hood commenced his march north, after he had evacuated Atlanta, the Twenty-fifth, with its corps, started in pursuit and met Hood's forces at Rome, Ga., and Cedar Bluff, Ala., and at Franklin, Tenn. It joined the army at Nashville under General Thomas, and on the 15th and 16th, 1864, participated in that battle and helped to drive the confederates from their strong positions and followed them in their retreat as far as Columbia.

After the signal defeat of General Hood, the Twenty-third Corps marched 250 miles to Clifton, on the Tennessee River, where it was transported to Cincinnati, Ohio, and then by rail to Washington, D. C. The corps had been transported east to join with General Sherman's army, then on its march north through the Carolinas. The Twenty-fifth was embarked upon transports for North Carolina and, marching inland from the coast, joined General Sherman at Goldsboro, N. C.

When General Johnson surrendered the confederate army to General Sherman the Twenty-fifth was sent to Salisbury, N. C., where it was mustered out June 24, 1865, and in command of Colonel Moore started for Michigan and arrived at Jackson July 2d, where it was paid off and disbanded.

The Twenty-fifth was engaged at Munfordsville, Ky., Dec. 27, 1862; Tebb's Bend, Ky., July 4, 1863; Kingston, Tenn., Nov. 26, 1863; Mossy Creek, Tenn., Dec. 29, 1863; Tunnel Hill, Ga., May 7 and 8, 1864; Rocky Face, Ga., May 9 and 10, 1864; Resaca, Ga., May 13 and 14, 1864; Cassville, Ga., May 19, 1864; Etowah River, Ga., May 20, 1864; Kingston, Ga., May 27, 1864; Allatoona, Ga., May 26, 27, 28 and 29, 1864; Pine Mountain, Ga., June 3 to 7, 1864; Lost Mountain, Ga., June 10 to 18, 1864; Culp's Farm, Ga., June 22, 1864; Kenesaw, Ga., June 23 to 29, 1864; Nickajack Creek, Ga., July 1, 1864; Chattahoochee River, Ga., July 9, 1864; Decatur, Ga., July 18 and 19, 1864; Atlanta, Ga., July 20, 22 and 28, 1864; East Point, Ga., Aug. 3, 1864; Utoy Creek, Ga., Aug. 6, 1864; siege of Atlanta, Ga., July 22 to Aug. 25, 1864; Jonesboro, Ga., Sept. 3 and 4, 1864; Rome, Ga., Oct. 12, 1864; Cedar Bluffs, Ala., Oct. 23, 1864; Pine Creek, Tenn., Nov. 26, 1864; Franklin, Tenn., Nov. 30, 1864; Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 15 and 16, 1864.
