RECORD OF SERVICE

OF

Michigan Volunteers

IN THE

CIVIL WAR

Published by authority of the Senate and House of Representatives of the Michigan Legislature, under the direction of Brig. Gen. Geo. H. Brown, Adjutant General.

In presenting this work to the public, we wish to acknowledge the painstaking, enthusiastic, and able efforts of Assistant Adjutant General, Col. George H. Turner, who, by long and most honorable military service, was especially fitted for the work of compiling this volume. To him is due our unbounded gratitude, and the full honor of these carefully prepared records.

INTRODUCTORY.

The compilation of the military history of each soldier of the Civil War (who was a resident of the State of Michigan at the time he enlisted), for publication and distribution has been the subject of controversy for years. The magnitude of such a work, together with the cost of publication, the exhaustive research required and the amount of clerical services necessary in its compilation, have been large factors in postponing, from time to time, the consideration of the subject.

To comply as far as possible with this demand an admirable history was prepared by Adjutant General John Robertson, a few years ago, entitled "Michigan in the War," and gratuitously distributed through the generosity of the state to the surviving soldiers of the war and to the families of those who perished. But this work was general in character, referring mostly to regimental organizations, and contained the military biography of commissioned officers only.

The enlisted men of the army who endured the hardships and suffered the perils of war considered it due themselves and their children that their names should appear of record in the archives of their country and their services noted, that future generations might know the honorable part their ancestors bore in the memorable conflict known as the Civil War. Such a record will ever be a source of patriotic pride to the soldier who did his duty whether he served in the ranks or in command of divisions or corps, and an inspiration to the youth of the country who must in the future assume the civic and military responsibilities of this grand republic.

At the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Michigan, held at Pontiac, June 11 and 12, 1902, the following resolution was passed unanimously:

"Resolved: That the Department of Michigan, Grand Army of the Republic, in encampment assembled, hereby request of the legislature and the Governor of Michigan that immediate provision be made for the publication of the record of the officers and enlisted men who served from this state during the Civil War in form substantially the same as those published by other states, notably New Hampshire, Connecticut and Ohio."

The Department Commander appointed a committee on legislation consisting of C. E. Foote, Kalamazoo, Col. Fred Schneider, Lansing, and Alfred Milnes, Coldwater. This committee drafted the following bill, which was passed by both houses of the legislature in the session of 1903, and was promptly signed by Governor Bliss.

The act is known as Act 147, Public Acts of 1903.

The first three sections of the Act are as follows, and the concluding sections refer to provisions of contracting for publication and auditing accounts.

The People of the State of Michigan enact:

Section 1. The Adjutant General shall, as soon as practicable after the passage of this act, prepare for publication an alphabetical regimental history of all soldiers and sailors who enlisted from and were credited to this state during the war of the rebellion. Such history shall contain the name, residence, date of enlistment, date of muster in, rank, promotion, wounds received, capture and imprisonment by the enemy, date of discharge, muster out or death, and such information as can be obtained from the records of this state, the war, navy and other departments of the Federal Government, or other authentic sources, as will correct or complete the records, making as far as practicable a complete and concise military history of each soldier or sailor so serving; prefacing each volume of such records appropriately, with a concise general history of the organization therein named. He shall direct the preparation and compilation of such records for publication in forty-three, forty-four, forty-five, or forty-six volumes, assigning as far as practicable one volume to each of the following organizations and groups of organizations, viz.: One volume to each regimental infantry organization and reorganization, numbered from First to Thirtieth regiment; one volume each to First regiment of Michigan Engineers and Mechanics, First regiment Michigan Sharpshooters, and First regiment Michigan colored troops; one volume to the fourteen Michigan Batteries of Light Artillery; one volume to Gen. George A. Custer's Cavalry Brigade, consisting of the First, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh regiments of Michigan cavalry; one volume to each of the Second, Third, Fourth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh Michigan cavalry regiments; and one volume to contain all other miscellaneous organizations and detachments enlisted in this state and serving in Michigan and other state organizations; and one volume to contain a general alphabetical index of all names mentioned in the different volumes constituting the entire edition, showing in what organization or volume each name in the index may be found, for the convenient reference of the public in library sets, which index volume is herewith limited to two hundred copies. For this purpose the Adjutant General is authorized to employ such extra clerical assistance and procure such blanks and stationery as may be necessary in the preparation, compilation, comparing and proof reading, necessary to secure historical and typographical accuracy.

Section 2. The distribution of said volumes when published shall be made under the supervision of the Adjutant General, in the same general manner now adopted for the distribution of "Michigan in the War," under section three, act two hundred forty-eight, public acts of eighteen hundred eighty-seven. One regimental volume to the applicant of the organization in which he served as follows: Any person who served in any Michigan regiment, battery, company or detachment during the Civil War, and has been honorably discharged, or any person who served in any regiment, battery or company from any other state, or in the regular army, or in the navy, properly accredited to the State of Michigan, and has been honorably discharged, or if such person be dead, then his widow if living, or if she be dead, then his father if living, if he be dead, then the mother of any such person, or if she be dead, then to his eldest child, if any there be; and any such person who is still in the service, shall be entitled to receive one copy of said work, on application and identification to the Adjutant General, and if the application for such copy be not made in person by depositing with the Adjutant General necessary postage to cover the expense of sending such book. Also complete sets to adjutants general of other states, and to state and United States public libraries upon application, and to such other libraries in this state as the Governor may approve, and may be purchased by any other persons who may apply at cost of publication.

Section 3. So soon as the work of preparation and compilation of the historical records herein provided for shall have progressed sufficiently near completion to enable printers and binders to make accurate estimates of the cost of publication, the Adjutant General shall serve a written notification of that fact on the Board of State Auditors; upon such notification, at the earliest practicable moment, the Board of State Auditors is hereby directed to solicit sealed bids for the publication, printing and binding of forty-five thousand volumes of "A Record of Michigan Soldiers and Sailors in the War of the Rebellion, Eighteen Hundred Sixty-one to Eighteen Hundred Sixty-Five," and give public notice of the time and place for receiving such bids and the requirements of the contract in accordance with this act by publishing the same in such paper or papers, and for such a period as will in the judgment of the board bring the subject to the attention of the several prominent publishing houses in this state: Provided, That the cost of such work complete shall not exceed fourteen thousand dollars for the printing, binding and delivery of the entire edition herein provided for; and the standard of excellence in quality of material, style of binding, typography and style of printing shall be equal to that used by the state of Massachusetts in its recent publication of "Massachusetts' Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolutionary War," copies of which are now on file in the Adjutant General's office of this state: Provided, further, That the apportionment of the copies of the different regimental volumes of the edition of forty-five thousand volumes herein provided for, shall be in the same relative proportion as the total enrollment of the organizations represented in any single volume bears to the total enrollment of the entire edition as provided for in this act; for which purpose the Adjutant General shall direct the preparation of, and furnish the Board of State Auditors with a comprehensive table of data, showing the total enrollment of the organization, and the total number of printed pages intended for each volume, and the apportionment of the total number of copies to each of such volumes, for the guidance of bidders for the contract of publishing such work.

Immediately upon the approval of the act by the Governor, the Adjutant General commenced active preparations to compile the work as provided for in the bill. No state has been more generous than Michigan in trying to secure full and complete historical military data of her sons, who patriotically volunteered to defend the integrity of their country, and probably the records in the military department are as accurate and complete as any like records of any state in the Union. Yet with all the care and research that has been made, there are individual histories that are deficient in some particulars, owing to the fact that the returns from which they were copied were written in the field during active and protracted campaigns, when great battles were fought, and the movement of troops continued incessantly night and day, circumstances incompatible with accuracy, completeness and legibility, and by officers who succeeded suddenly in command by the death of their predecessors. The greater number who possessed the information desired have been removed by death, and their silent lips can never complete the unwritten history of their comrades.

It was sometimes impossible in the stirring times of war for commanding officers to give authentic and final history of men who disappeared in a great battle, as in many cases the bodies of the dead could not be found, and if possession of the field was yielded to the enemy the fate of those who were made prisoners of war could only, if ever, be learned through unreliable Confederate sources.

For such heroes who died for their country and who sleep in nameless graves their epitaph is inscribed in this history as "Missing in action." A more honorable or heroic epitaph could not be penned. Thousands of the Union dead have been removed by the Government from the field where they fell, and their bodies have been placed in national cemeteries, beautified and adorned, as the mausoleum of the nation's defenders with appropriate monuments at their resting places.

In order to complete some of the records of the Adjutant General's Office, which is the custodian of all the field returns of the Civil War, Governor Bliss made a request of the Secretary of War, seconded by Senators Burrows and Alger, asking that the incomplete, individual records of this office be completed, upon presentation by the Adjutant General, provided the War Department was in possession of the facts desired. For reasons which seemed sufficient to the Secretary of War, the request was denied.

To supplement the records of this office so as to make each individual history complete as far as possible, blanks were prepared and sent to all the Grand Army Posts of the state, with the request that the names of all Michigan soldiers in the Post and vicinity be returned to the Adjutant General stating the residence, if living, and, if dead, the date of death and place of burial.

Three hundred out of the three hundred and sixty Posts of the state responded, and the data gathered from these reports have been added to the official history shown by the records of this office. Without doubt there are some inaccuracies in these reports, but the majority of them are correct and will enable many ex-soldiers to locate their comrades, if living, and to know their resting places if dead.

A request was also made of each superintendent of the eighty national cemeteries to forward to the Adjutant General the names of all Michigan soldiers buried in such cemeteries. A gratifying response was received, and these reports have been carefully compiled and added to the history of the soldier. These reports of the superintendents of national cemeteries tell a mournful story. The superintendent of the National Cemetery at Andersonville, Ga., reports the names of six hundred and forty-seven Michigan soldiers buried there, victims of Andersonville prison. There is scarcely a national cemetery in the United States that does not contain the bodies of Michigan soldiers, and a number of them as many as the cemetery at Andersonville, Ga.

Near the close of the war there were many recruits at depots awaiting transportation to join regiments at the front, but when it was found their services would not be needed, many returned home without the formality of a muster out, and their final disposition was incomplete, and in many such cases shows "no further record."

In the compilation of this work no pains have been spared and no research of the almost numberless field returns made forty years ago, has seemed too arduous to make the soldiers' record absolutely complete if there were material existing to make this possible. That inaccuracies will appear is unavoidable from the nature of the work. The inaccuracies are not the result of careless clerical work in the Adjutant General's office, but are due to the hasty compilation of returns in the field, where names were misspelled and where the name of a soldier is spelled differently in the muster-in and muster-out rolls.

In cases where the name could not be verified as the correct one both are published. When inaccuracies appear in the record if the soldier will send his discharge papers to the Adjutant General, the corrections will be made in the official records of the office and the discharge papers promptly returned. It scarcely occurred to the officers who made their official returns to the different departments that forty years after the conflict, an individual history of each soldier who participated would be written. Had such been known then, the meagre and scant accounts of skirmishes, battles and sieges—many of them destined to be of world-wide fame—would have been extended and written out fully giving a comprehensive history of individuals, companies and regiments, a history that would be a priceless heritage today and to future generations.

The hardships of a campaign, the duties exacted night and day, the constant attention to matters of vital importance, are not conducive to literary efforts of biography or general history. It is pathetic to know that thousands upon thousands of Union soldiers who participated in many of the most desperate battles of the Civil War, have no records of such battles to their credit in the official reports. A limited number were fortunate enough to have their names recorded by their officers as participating in such engagements.

Whenever the official records have mentioned the battles in which the soldier fought, or wounds that he received, or promotions made, or any gallant and meritorious service, such record has been carefully noted and attached to the soldier's history. At the commencement of the work it was found that many soldiers saw service in more than one regiment, and as the appropriation contemplated but one volume to each man, the entire history of the soldier has been compiled under his name and placed in the volume where he served longest. The primary object of the whole work has been to group the comrades who served in the same regiment, with names arranged in alphabetical order, and present him with the volume containing his own military history and the history of those with whom he served.

The soldiers who enlisted for three years and after serving two years re-enlisted in the field for "three years or during the war," have the distinctive and honorable title of "veteran" placed after their names.

Careful enumeration has been made of the total enrollment of each regiment, together with the list of casualties.

The work of compiling these individual histories has been long and arduous, but it has been one of gratification and satisfaction to record the gallant deeds of Michigan men who contributed so gloriously to the unity and perpetuity of the Union.

Engineers and Mechanics.

In an effort to save to the credit of Michigan several companies being recruited for Colonel Wilson's Fusileers (so-called), at Chicago, Ill., Wright L. Coffinberry, Baker Borden, Perrin V. Fox and James W. Sligh of Grand Rapids went to the office of William P. Innes, as a suitable person to wire the War Department as follows: "Will the War Department accept a regiment from Michigan on same terms as Colonel Wilson's of Chicago?" The message was sent, and next day the answer came: "Yes, with the approval of the governor of the State." Governor Blair was asked when he could be seen, "Important." He answered: "Will take night train and be there in the morning."

Hon. W. D. Foster met the governor and explained the situation. After conference with Mr. Foster, he called in Mr. Innes and soon gave him authority to raise a regiment of ten companies to be officered and equipped as infantry and provided with implements for engineer service, to which he gave the name of "First Michigan Engineers and Mechanics." The companies intended for Colonel Wilson readily accepted position with Colonel Innes. Recruiting was active and the city of Marshall fixed for rendezvous.

Some complained that the inducements of extra pay, etc., promised in Colonel Wilson's circulars, would not be realized. Colonel Innes went to Washington for definite information. The War Department accepted the regiment with same pay and allowances as engineers of the regular army. The colonel reported same on his return to the regiment, stating that those (if any) who declined to accept these conditions were at liberty to go. The line officers were allowed horses, and implements for engineer service were provided. The regiment was completed by the last of October and on the 29th of October was mustered into service by Captain H. R. Mizner, U. S. Army.

The field, staff and line officers at organization were as follows:

Colonel William P. Innes, Grand Rapids. Lieutenant Colonel, Kinsman A. Hunton, Marshall. Major, Enos Hopkins, Jackson. Surgeon, William H. DeCamp, Grand Rapids. Assistant Surgeon, Willoughby O'Donoghue, Albion. Adjutant, Clement F. Miller, Kalamazoo. Quartermaster, Robert S. Innes, Grand Rapids. Chaplain, D. Burnham Tracy, Petersburg.

Co. A. Captain, John B. Yates, Ionia. First Lieutenant, Frederick W. Huxford, Albion. Second Lieutenant, Horace C. Gilson, Albion.

Co. B. Captain, Baker Borden, Grand Rapids. First Lieutenant, John W. Williamson, Grand Rapids. Second Lieutenant, John W. McCrath, Grand Rapids.

Co. C. Captain, Wright L. Coffinberry, Grand Rapids. First Lieutenant, James D. Robinson, Grand Rapids. Second Lieutenant, Edwin Baxter, Grand Rapids.

Co. D. Captain, Perrin V. Fox, Grand Rapids. First Lieutenant, Joseph C. Herkner, Grand Rapids. Second Lieutenant, William T. Hess, Grand Rapids.

Co. E. Captain, Silas Canfield, Ionia. First Lieutenant, L. F. Mills. Second Lieutenant, Albert B. Culver, Ionia.

Co. F. Captain James W. Sligh, Grand Rapids. First Lieutenant, Albert H. Kimball, Grand Rapids. Second Lieutenant, William F. Nevius.

Co. G. Captain, Garrett Hannings, Kalamazoo. First Lieutenant, Elias H. Broadwell, Kalamazoo. Second Lieutenant, Franklin Fisk, Kalamazoo.

Co. H. Captain, Marcus Grant, Jackson. First Lieutenant, Edson S. Frary, Petersburg. Second Lieutenant, Solon S. Grant.

Co. I. Captain, Heman Palmerlee, Grand Rapids. First Lieutenant, Joseph J. Rhodes. Second Lieutenant, Theodore H. Prall, Pontiac.

Co. K. Captain, Emery O. Crittenden, Marshall. First Lieutenant, Lorenzo D. Mason, Boston. Second Lieutenant, Arthur Connelly, Grand Rapids.

The regiment left the State December 17, 1861, with an aggregate strength of 1,032, proceeding to Louisville, Ky., and reported to General Buell, in command of the Army of the Ohio. It was divided into four detachments and assigned to duty with the four Divisions of General Buell's army as follows:

First detachment, Colonel Innes in command, consisting of Companies B, E, and I, reported to General McCook at Munfordsville, Ky.

Second detachment, Lieutenant Colonel Hunton commanding, consisting of Companies D, F and G, reported to General Thomas at Lebanon, Ky.

The third detachment, consisting of Companies C and H, under command of Major E. Hopkins, reported to General Nelson, at New Haven, Ky.

The fourth detachment, consisting of Companies A and K, Captain J. B. Yates commanding, reported to General Mitchell at Bacon Creek, Ky.

These detachments remained with their several divisions during the winter, engaged in various duties. The one under Lieutenant Colonel Hunton, consisting of Companies D, F and G, was with General Thomas in the battle of Mill Springs, Ky., Jan. 19, 1862.

The detachment with General Mitchell, consisting of Companies A and K, was among the first to occupy Bowling Green immediately after its evacuation by the confederates.

Buell's army having arrived at Nashville very soon after the capture of Fort Donaldson by General Grant, the regiment was concentrated and engaged during March in building railroad bridges at Franklin, Columbia, Murfreesboro and other places, with headquarters at Nashville. On April 3d. Colonel Innes, with his staff and Companies B, C, E, I and H, left Nashville and being joined at Columbia by Companies D, F, and G, commenced the march with Buell's Army of the Ohio to re-enforce General Grant at Shiloh, Miss. On this march several bridges were built and the rapidity with which the work was accomplished enabled General Buell to reach the field of Shiloh in time to assist in turning the tide of battle and converting defeat into victory. In the meantime Companies A and K, commanded by Captain Yates, had marched from Nashville with General Mitchell's division, by way of Murfreesboro to Huntsville, Ala., cutting the railroad communications at that point. Eight companies were with the army in its advance on Corinth, engaged in building defenses, placing siege guns in position and constructing miles of corduroy roads through the swamps to facilitate the advance of the army.

After the evacuation of Corinth, June 1, 1862, these companies started on the march toward Decatur, Ala., building bridges at various points on the Memphis & Charleston railroad. During the month about 3,000 feet of bridges were built and the road put in running order as far as Decatur. Companies A and K at Huntsville had worked on the road also and thus it was repaired as far as Stevenson, excepting the bridge over the Tennessee river at Decatur. In July the whole regiment was at Huntsville. In August Colonel Innes, with five companies, marched to Nashville, and commenced building bridges on the Louisville and Nashville railroad previously destroyed by the confederate general, Morgan, in his raid upon our communications. On the advance of the confederate army under General Bragg into Kentucky, in September, the regiment was, with Buell's army, hastily concentrated at Louisville; the different battalions with the several divisions of the army taking part in the campaign against Bragg. On October 8th, the detachment under command of Major Hopkins, consisting of companies A, C and H, with Rousseau's division of McCook's Corps, took part in the battle of Perryville, with a loss of seventeen men wounded. After the battle of Perryville the regiment was again united and marched with the army to Nashville. In taking leave of the army General Buell complimented, and made personal mention of Colonel Innes, Lieutenant Colonel Hunton and Major Hopkins. General Rosecrans having been appointed to the command of the army, it was concentrated at Nashville. During November and December the regiment was engaged in building bridges over Mill Creek and other streams on line of Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad, preparing for the advance to Murfreesboro.

The advance on Murfreesboro during the last few days of December culminated in the battle of Stone River Dec. 31, 1862, and Jan. 1 and 2, 1863. The enemy, under General Wheeler, having raided our communications and destroyed baggage trains, Colonel Innes was ordered to take position at Lavergne, midway between Nashville and Murfreesboro, to protect our communication and supply trains passing on the pike. A slight barricade composed of brush and wagons was constructed, and none too soon, for at noon on New Year's day, a large force of rebels under General Wheeler made its appearance on the Murfreesboro pike just north of the position taken by the regiment. The improvised corral was soon attacked and the 391 officers and men were confronted with three or four thousand cavalry and a section of light artillery. During the engagement, which lasted until dark, the enemy made seven distinct, separate charges upon the little band behind their frail defenses, but each time was repulsed with loss.

Mr. Greely, in his book, "The American Conflict," notices Colonel Innes' defense at Lavergne and in part says: "The operation of the enemy in the rear of our army during this memorable conflict (battle of Stone River), reflects no credit on the intelligence and energy with which they were resisted. The silver lining to this cloud was a most gallant defense made on the 1st of January by Colonel Innes' First Michigan Engineers and Mechanics, 391 strong, fighting behind a slight protection of wagons and brush, who repulsed repeated charges from more than ten times their number of Wheeler's cavalry."

From January 1st to June 29th, 1863, the regiment was stationed at Lavergne, Murfreesboro, Smyrna and Nashville. During this time it built bridges, magazines, buildings for commissary and ordnance stores and relaid a large amount of railroad track.

In 1862 Congress passed an act recognizing all volunteer organizations mustered into the United States service and placing them on the same footing as the corps of engineers of the Regular Army of the United States. This allowed the First Michigan Engineers twelve companies of 150 men each. In the winter of 1863-4, recruiting parties from each company were sent home and by energetic work 913 recruits were secured, among them being an addition of two new companies, L and M, bringing the regiment up to the maximum of twelve companies. The officers of the new companies were:

Co. L. Captain George D. Emerson. First Lieutenant, Elias H. Broadwell, Kalamazoo (by transfer). Second Lieutenant, _____, Co M. Captain, Edson P. Gifford, Grand Rapids. First Lieutenant, Daniel M. Moore, Rome. Second Lieutenant, Douglas Nelson, Isabella City. Second Lieutenant, Caleb A. Ensign, Jonesville.

The officers of the three battalions were John B. Yates, commissioned Major May 28, 1863; Perrin V. Fox, commissioned Major Dec. 15, 1863, and Garrett Hannings, commissioned Major January 1, 1864.

On June 29, 1863, the regiment moved south with the army from Murfreesboro in the advance on Chattanooga, and was engaged in repairing the railroad from Murfreesboro to Bridgeport, building bridges, etc. A bridge over Elk River, 460 feet long and 40 to 60 feet high, was built in eight days from timber taken from the woods, and one over Duck River 350 feet in length, in about the same time. Later detachments of the regiment were engaged in building bridges and repairing the railroads leading to Bridgeport, Ala. One battalion under command of Captain P. V. Fox accompanied the advance of the army to Chattanooga. This detachment consisted of Companies D and K, commanded by Lieutenants Herkner and Curtis, respectively. Besides building pontoon and trestle bridges at Chattanooga, it took a most active part in the construction of a pontoon bridge at Brown's Ferry across the Tennessee River, and opening up the well-known "cracker line" from Chattanooga to Bridgeport. In connection with this affair a correspondent from Chattanooga writes as follows:

"During the fight, Captain P. V. Fox, company D, Michigan Engineers and Mechanics, in command of three companies of that regiment, with forty of his own and ninety-eight of the Twenty-first Michigan Infantry, volunteered to place the pontoon bridge in proper position across the river at the contested point, which they accomplished in seven hours, and only a short time was consumed in the construction of fifty-two pontoon boats and their formation into a serviceable bridge."

The laying of this bridge with the movement of Hooker's troops opened the "cracker line" from the base of supplies to Chattanooga and from that date the half-starved Union forces were served with full rations. General Thomas complimented the officers in charge of this expedition and the men serving under them in general orders.

During the latter months of 1863 and the early part of 1864, the regiment was engaged in the construction of the Nashville and Northwestern railroad from Nashville to the Tennessee River, erecting block houses on the lines of railroad from Nashville to Chattanooga, and in the construction of storehouse and ordnance buildings at Bridgeport and Chattanooga. Companies L and M completed the defenses at Stevenson, Ala. In June, 1864, the regiment, with the exception of the two companies at Stevenson, L and M, and one company, C, at Chattanooga, took up the line of march with the army under General Sherman in its advance to Atlanta, rebuilding bridges, repairing railroads and materially assisting in the advance of the army. The regiment arrived in Atlanta on September 28th, where its headquarters were established. On Nov. 2, the original term of the regiment expired. Colonel Innes and such officers as desired to do so were mustered out; also the enlisted men whose term of enlistment had expired. The re-enlisted veterans, together with recruits who had joined the regiment from time to time, enabled it to maintain its full strength and organization entire: Colonel John B. Yates succeeded to the command of the regiment.

Ten of the companies were at Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 1, 1864, employed in constructing defenses and destroying public property that was useful to the confederates. Companies L and M were in Tennessee and did not accompany General Sherman on his march to the sea.

The regiment was attached to the Fourteenth corps and made the march to Savannah, Ga., its services often being required in the construction of bridges and laying pontoons so the army might not be delayed on the march. Upon arrival at Savannah, the regiment destroyed a vast amount of railroad track leading out of the city and assisted in constructing defenses and fortifications.

On this memorable march the regiment was required to keep pace with the movements of the army, traveling over twenty miles a day, and during the time was employed in tearing up railroad track, twisting rails, burning bridges, repairing and making roads through marshes, and building bridges. The regiment left Atlanta November 16th and arrived before Savannah, Ga., Dec. 11. The following extracts taken from a diary kept during the march will give a better idea of the work done, and the hardships of the march:

"Nov. 17. Companies K, D, C, G, E and I, with three days' rations, left the main column and struck the Atlanta & Augusta railroad at Lithonia; tore up the track and twisted the rails for several miles; then followed large bodies of infantry from the Fourteenth Corps until they reached Covington, twisting the T rails."

"Nov. 18. After reaching a point beyond Covington, the six companies left the railroad about dusk and marched three or four miles until we reached the direct road to Eatonton, not far from the Oleofanbacher river. The day's march was very hard on the men, some of whom fainted by the way."

"Dec. 2. Marched as usual. Reached Buckhead Creek at 1 p. m.; repaired two or three bridges partly destroyed by rebels. General Slocum present in person waiting to cross his troops and train. Crossed over and camped near Buckhead Church about dark."

"Dec. 3d. Moved down the river toward Millen and Augusta. Then marched to near Horse Creek, on the road to Sylvania; the last few miles were made after dark; men very tired; halted in the road near water; supper at 11; sleep about midnight."

"Dec. 4th. Reveille at 4. Marched at 6 a. m.; repaired several bad places in the road, one in particular near Little Horse Creek; cut down small pine trees and with fence rails made a passable road for the trains. Part of the men on duty at this place all night keeping road in repair and assisting trains to cross."

"Dec. 10th. Marched at 7 a. m. At Telfair we turned off on the railroad. Formed column by companies closed in mass. Waited orders; soon discovered an engine up the track carrying a mounted cannon, which opened upon us. After a few shots we moved across the track into the woods. One man, Robert Brown of company H, was mortally wounded by a cannon ball. Soon after the regiment was ordered on to a canal where a dam was built to prevent the rebels overflowing the ground between us."

"Dec. 11. Major Hanning, with companies C, E, I and B, moved over to the Charleston & Savannah railroad. After finishing the dam across the canal the balance of the regiment moved out from under fire and went into camp near General Sherman's headquarters."

"On Dec. 24 the regiment moved into Savannah. Have a very comfortable camp in the suburbs and the men are enjoying a well-earned rest.

After the fall of Savannah the regiment was embarked on transports for Beaufort, S. C., and then started on the long march through the Carolinas for Goldsboro, N. C. During this march a vast amount of public property was destroyed, railroad iron heated and twisted and almost numberless bridges built and repaired, the men often working all night so the army could march the next morning.

Companies L and M, that had been left in Tennessee were assigned to duty with the army of the Cumberland and were busily engaged during the year in building block houses, guarding railroads and were frequently attacked by the enemy. March 1, 1865, these two companies proceeded by rail to New York where they were sent by steamer to Beaufort and afterward joined the regiment at Goldsboro, N. C.

After the surrender of General Lee to General Grant and General Johnson to General Sherman, the regiment proceeded to Washington, where it took part in the grand review, May 24. The regiment was then sent to Nashville, Tenn., where it was employed upon the defenses until September 22, when it was mustered out of service. It arrived at Jackson, Mich., where it was paid and disbanded October 1, 1865.

Engaged at Mill Springs, Ky., January 19, 1862; Farmington, Miss., May 9, 1862; siege of Corinth, May 10 to 31, 1862; Perryville, Ky., October 8, 1862; Lavergne, Tenn., January 1, 1863; Chattanooga, Tenn., October 6, 1863; siege of Atlanta, Ga., July 22 to September 2, 1864; Savannah, Ga., December 11 to 21, 1864; Averysboro, N. C., March 16, 1865; Bentonville, N. C., March 19, 1865.

It is difficult to present in a brief manner the important services rendered to the Union armies by this regiment, the organization of which, and for the purpose it was designed, are quite distinct from any other Michigan regiment. Scarcely an organization in the western department but what at some time during the war was helped and benefitted by the labors of the officers and men of the Engineers' and Mechanics', and the movement of the great armies of Rosecrans, Sherman and Thomas were facilitated and combinations made practical that otherwise would have been left to the element of chance.

Possibly more than any other organization the regiment worked in detachments, often at widely different places, as their skillful services were required in the mechanical construction of bridges, pontoons, boats, forts, block houses, saw mills and in the destruction of the enemy's railroads. The prodigious labors of the engineers in building bridges across wide rivers and over deep chasms from the material that was growing in the forest, in celerity or utility had the work been done at the factory from finished seemed at times like the work of genii and could not have been surpassed products, aided by the best mechanical appliances.
